DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This dwelling is located on Trimble Road in Slabtown. The one and one-half story rectangular building is one bay wide on the western facing facade. Wall construction is of "V" notched logs covered with insul brick siding. The gabled roof is constructed of mortise and tenon log beams covered with wooden shingles, a layer of tin and asphalt shingles. Eaves consist of a shallow simple cornice. The building rests on a high rubble stone foundation. Shed roofed additions abut the northern and eastern elevations.

Windows are 3/1 sashes which replaced original windows. Windows in the gable of the northern elevation have been boarded shut. The entrance offset the S on the E elevation has been obscured by an addition. A chimney located to inside-end on the original building has a cap of white glazed brick. A chimney on the interior of the eastern addition has a corbeled cap and is made of white glazed brick.

The interior is arranged into two rooms on the ground floor separated by a partition. A fireplace on the northern wall of the building has been removed. A one-flight enclosed stairway has a window. Exposed logs are visible in a closet built into the stairway. The second floor of the house is one room.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This substantially altered log house was built between 1842 and 1865 by members of the Winter family. The house does not appear on an 1842 map of the area which was drawn for the Maryland and New York Stone and Coal Company. The deed by which George Winters conveyed one acre of a tract known as "Federal Hill" to Francis Quick in 1865 describes the property as "... one acre of land with a two story log house... part of the farm now owned by... George Winter, situated near the Mount Savage Iron Works." (Land Records Liber 24, Folio 79) The Winter family lived nearby in a stone farmhouse known as the "Evergreens" (See AL-V-A-031) Winter acquired the property from William Ridgely in 1822. (Land Records Liber L, Folio 353)
